KEEP THE MUSIC ALIVE

The NCEM was opened in 2000 thanks to Arts Council Lottery monies and partners including English Heritage and the people of York. Since then, the NCEM has become established as a centre of excellence with three annual festivals of early music, a year-round programme of concerts and creative learning activities and a proven commitment to support emerging talent across all ages.

The NCEM is ambitious and confident and our plans for the future are equally exciting!

Join us to help keep the music alive - and help make a difference!

THANK YOU!

One third of our annual operational costs are met through the generosity of private individuals, trust funds and from earned income. Every gift, no matter how small, makes a tremendous difference to our capacity to continue presenting our exceptional concert and learning programmes. Please consider adding in a small donation when booking tickets.

FRIENDS OF THE YORK EARLY MUSIC FESTIVAL SUPPORTING EMERGING NEW TALENT

Friends of the summer festival bring together those with a special love of early music supporting this, the UK's largest festival of early music. Taking place annually in July, the festival promotes some of the world's finest early music specialists performing in some of York's most beautiful historic venues, and supports an ever-increasing body of emerging talent.

Friends enjoy priority booking, reserved seating and opportunities to make new friends with like-minded individuals from across the world.

“At a time of challenge for live music the NCEM keeps York on the national musical map through its clear focus and imaginative concert programming, while continuing to develop a local community of support from all generations through its enthusiastic outreach ”

Vivienne Faull

Of increasing importance is the support of emerging talent with the biennial International Young Artists Competition (IYAC) being a particular highlight with artists from across the world taking part – join now to get a vote!

ENGAGING YOUNG PEOPLE FROM THE EARLIEST AGE

The NCEM works locally, regionally, nationally and internationally – putting learning, participation and the joys of music-making at the heart of our work.

Musicians from across the UK come to the NCEM to support young people make music of the highest possible standard. Recent highlights include collaborations with the Orchestra of the Age of Enlightenment, violinist Rachel Podger, lutenist Elizabeth Kenny and Theatre of the Ayre, The Tallis Scholars, Carnival Band and The Sixteen.

Festivals offer performance opportunities for the NCEM's young person's instrumental ensemble Minster Minstrels and students from the University of York. Music graduates from universities and conservatoires from across the UK regularly join our friendly administrative team.
